

The University of Tennessee at Chattanooga
Department of English
Assistant Professor

The Department of English at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga invites applications for the position of tenure-track assistant professor of English, beginning August 2010, with primary specialization in Shakespeare. The department seeks a candidate able to teach courses at all levels (including graduate courses). Teaching responsibilities include a 4/4 load. Qualifications: Ph.D. in Renaissance literature; demonstrated excellence in and commitment to undergraduate teaching and to research; excellent writing, interpersonal, and communication skills. The search committee will begin screening applications immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Preliminary interviews will be conducted by telephone. Please submit a letter of interest, vita, transcript, and three letters of reference electronically to facultyvitae@utc.edu. The subject line of the email should read: F09-2-003 English.

The University of Tennessee at Chattanooga is a metropolitan university of over 10,000 students offering baccalaureate degrees in 44 fields, master's in 22, and doctorates in three. Founded as a private university in 1886, it became a primary campus of the University of Tennessee in 1969. Its 100-acre campus is located near downtown Chattanooga, in the center of a very scenic metropolitan area of more than 450,000 people. Chattanooga is a mid-sized city that has been featured in US News and World Report and Parade as one of America's most livable cities. This family-friendly city has gained international attention for its downtown and riverfront development, public and private partnerships, excellent quality of life and reasonable living costs. The university's private endowment, currently valued at more than $100 million, enables UTC to maintain academic excellence beyond that funded by state appropriations.

UTC is an EEO/AA/Title VI and IX/Section 504/ADA/ADEA institution.