Linda Johnston, Chair

The publications board met April 10, 2006 and heard reports from representatives of the Sequoyah Review, The Echo and Mocs News. The three representatives shared an abbreviated year in review for the board. According to Mr. Jim Hicks, Associate Dean of Student Life and Student Development, the Echo and Sequoyah Review are within their budgets. Both are doing well financially and have had a good year. They are looking at the possibility of new equipment and new software for the 2006-07 year.

The Mocs News has a newer, sharper looking website. The website provides viewers with up to the minute information, including the previously broadcast shows. According to Phillip Jones, the goal for next year is to cover more local news and to provide the student body with more information about what Mocs News is all about.

The board reviewed applications for the Mocs News Program Director and the Editor of the Echo. The board appointed Phillip Jones as Program Director for Mocs News. The board appointed Ashley Hopkins as Editor of the Echo for the Fall Semester of 2006 and Katie Broderick as the editor for the Spring Semester of 2007. Sara Seay was appointed as editor of the Sequoyah Review.

The board will meet again in early fall for updates and general information.
