Using your phone

SH used below stands for “switchhooking,” an operation completed by quickly depressing and releasing the button your handset rests upon. On some phones a “flash” button accomplishes the same task.

Phone etiquette

Greeting callers

Callers should know that they have reached the University, which office, and who is speaking.

Example: “Good morning, this is the UTC Business Office, Mary speaking.”

Screening calls

The correct and polite way to ask who is calling is not to say “Who’s calling please?” but rather, “May I tell Dr. Doe who is calling?” or “May I ask who is calling?”

You may also want to find out the caller’s reason for calling. A polite method for getting this information is “May I tell Dr. Doe what this call concerns?”

When a caller refuses to give a name, you might tell the caller that Dr. Doe is unavailable or explain that you are not permitted to put through any call without first announcing the caller.

Several statements are acceptable to inform parties that you are unable to connect them. Example: “Dr. Doe is unavailable at the moment, can anyone else help you or would you like to leave a message?”

Answering calls for others

When you answer another person’s phone, take the calls as you would like to have yours taken—efficiently and courteously. It is always good to identify yourself and to offer assistance to the calling party. Be sure to note the calling party’s name (and number if applicable). Deliver messages as soon as possible.

Tips for taking messages

- Always have note pad and pen handy.
- Pay attention to the caller’s name. Repeat it. Write it. If it is an unusual name, ask for the spelling.
- Always ask for a phone number.
- Always verify numbers, times, and addresses.
- Never hesitate to ask someone to repeat details.
- Pronounce numbers carefully.
- Write legibly.
- Be sure to specify the date and time.

If you reach a wrong number

- Don’t hang up abruptly.
- Acknowledge that you reached a wrong number. Apologize—a brief “I’m sorry” will suffice.
- Check the number. “Have I reached 4014?”
- If you dialed correctly, check the listing.
