

Public Administration and Nonprofit Management Concentration

The Public Administration and Nonprofit Management (PANM) concentration offers two distinct tracks—one in public administration and the other in nonprofit management. With a focus on either the public or nonprofit sector, students in the PANM concentration learn the structure of government and nonprofit entities and how to manage people, financial resources and communications to best serve diverse populations.

The PANM concentration is designed to prepare students for management-related careers in fields such as public policy, financial management, program evaluation, social welfare, and the arts. It equips students with the knowledge, skills, ethics, and values required for effective public administration and nonprofit management.
