

Just Cause: The Experience is the newest project from Canamac Productions, the producers of the Defamation Experience, which was hosted at UTC as part of MOC Forward 2019. Similar to the Defamation Experience, audience members are not just spectators, but have the unique opportunity to adjudicate a legal drama. Just cause is about a case involving an artistic director who is suing her former employer—a prestigious Chicago Theater—for breach of contract after firing her for “racial insensitivity.”

This dynamic and captivating experience is also relevant and timely as it addresses some of today’s most challenging topics, including race, gender, and class discrimination, social justice, and COVID-19. The content allows us to be informed observers, active listeners, and to have robust, open and honest conversations about these topics.

As we continue to move our campus forward, we are excited to bring Just Cause to UTC in this fully immersive virtual format where anyone can register to participate and join the conversation.

Event Details:

Just Cause: The Experience – Wednesday, October 27th at 12:00pm

Follow-up Discussion – Wednesday, November 3rd at 12:00pm

Organizers: The MOC Forward Planning Committee, The Office of Equity and Inclusion, The Division of Diversity and Engagement, and Dr. Michelle Deardorff, Adolph S. Ochs Professor of Government and Department Head of Political Science and Public Service.

Click here to Register for free for Just Cause: The Experience!

Click here to see the trailer of Just Cause

Click here for Highlights from The Defamation Experience at MOC Forward 2019