PHILOSOPHY DEGREES AND HEALTH CARE

Are you interested in exploring the complex ethical issues that guide health care? Do you want to pursue a degree that will challenge you to think beyond easy answers, but will also guide you toward graduate work in the health care field?

The philosophy department at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga had developed a specialized curriculum specifically for philosophy majors interested in pursuing post-graduate careers in the medical field. Our health studies major track in philosophy allows our students to design a major that can push them intellectually and set them up for entrance into graduate programs in the health care field.

Philosophy is the “ultimate transferable work skill.” Philosophers learn how to analyze and solve problems, how to think and write clearly, how to persuade others and how to research. And, BONUS: Philosophers enjoy the best chance of admission to medical school of any major.

Take the first steps toward a career in health care today by applying for admission to the philosophy program at UTC!
