Overview

This course is an overview of the antecedents and consequences of stereotypes, prejudice and discrimination, primarily in the U.S., related to a variety of groups.

Course Format

This course focuses on the interdependence of theory, analysis, and practice in the study of stereotyping, prejudice and discrimination. It is intended to be a seminar, with each member of the class making a significant weekly contribution to the discussion. We will wade through the material together and attempt to enlighten one another through thoughtful, well-supported dialogue. Opinions are encouraged as long as you are willing to provide a logical argument integrating the existing literature. Individual case studies, while often interesting, frequently do not generalize. Many topics in this course can incite controversy, conflict and anger. It is contingent upon everyone in the class to approach these topics as maturely and objectively as possible and express themselves in a civil manner.

While the basic format of the course will not change during the semester, this course is a work in progress. As such, I may incorporate additional class activities and readings to supplement or replace those on the syllabus.

Course Materials

The following are required for class:

Other required readings and assignments will be distributed in class, or will be available on the Blackboard website at http://bb2.utc.edu/webapps/login.

Please note that grades will be rounded to the nearest whole percentage. An 89.4 is a B despite its proximity to an A, a 79.4 is a C, etc. There will be plenty of opportunities to improve your grade throughout the semester.

1. Exams. There will be three, semi-cumulative exams. The primary content for each test will be the chapters and associated material reviewed between each test. However, there are certain concepts that I believe should be retained throughout the semester that may appear in both tests. Each exam will consist of multiple choice, matching and short answer questions. They will cover topics in all required readings, as well as material presented and discussed in class. Make-up exams will be allowed only when arrangements have been made prior to the regularly scheduled exam date. If you have any special needs with regards to taking the exam, please see me immediately.

2. Discussion/Homework. This is a seminar course. Each week you will read all required readings and prepare two discussion questions that indicate a thorough knowledge of the relevant topics. Also bring to class observations on incidences of stereotyping, prejudice or discrimination you may have witnessed personally or heard about in the media during the week. You will be expected to make valuable contributions to the discussion on a regular basis.

3. Graduate Course Credit. Students taking this course for graduate credit will be required to prepare a 18 to 20 page (text, not including title page, abstract, references, tables, and attachments) literature review of a research area related to stereotyping, prejudice and discrimination. Please see me to approve your chosen topic no later than September 13th. The papers should exhibit a greater degree of complexity, analysis, synthesis and evaluation than would be expected of an undergraduate student. This literature review, then, will focus primarily on empirical and theoretical articles published in peer reviewed academic journals, such as, but not limited to, the following:

- Academy of Management Journal
- Academy of Management Review
- Administrative Science Quarterly
- American Psychologist
- Annual Review of Psychology
- Group Dynamics
- Human Performance
- Human Relations
- Journal of Applied Psychology
- Journal of Applied Social Psychology
- Journal of Personality and Social Psychology
- Journal of Management
- Journal of Organizational Behavior
- Leadership Quarterly
- Organizational Behavior & Human Development Processes
- Personnel Psychology
- Personality and Social Psychology Bulletin
- Psychological Bulletin
- Research in Organizational Behavior

The review should include no fewer than 5 articles and be prepared in APA format. Please look at Bolino (1999), Citizenship and impression management: Good soldiers or good actors?, in Academy of Management Review, Volume 24, pp. 82-98, for an example of the structure of a review article. Contact me early in the semester if you have questions about the format. This assignment will be due November 29th at the beginning of class. This paper will be in lieu of the final examination and account for 35% of your final grade.
Attendance

Attendance is required. If you must miss class, please contact me prior to class by phone or e-mail. Missing my class to study for another course is not an acceptable excuse. You are responsible for all material covered in classes that you do not attend. Three unexcused absences will result in a full grade reduction in your final grade.

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

If you have a disability that you believe may require assistance or accommodations, or you have questions related to any accommodations for testing, note takers, readers, etc., please contact the Office for Students with Disabilities/College Access Program (425-4006), or stop by their office at 110 Frist Hall.

Code of Academic Integrity

All students are expected to adhere to the letter and spirit of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga Code of Academic Integrity. Any violation of the honors code for any assignments or examinations may result in receiving zero points for the assignment, or a failing grade for the class. Cheating of any kind will not be tolerated. This includes plagiarism, that is, the use of the ideas or words of another without providing appropriate credit. At this point in your academic career, you should know what plagiarism is; if you don’t know – ASK! Ignorance of what constitutes cheating is not an acceptable excuse.

Statement on Personal Responsibility

It is my responsibility to provide you with an environment within which you can learn. However, it is your personal responsibility to learn in this course. To do so, it is your responsibility to come to class prepared to contribute to the educational process.
